

Brad Thompson

Wave 11 Apr 1985

Wasatch High School (LRJ) Brad Thompson is carrying on the tradition of fine musical instruction at Wasatch High School as well as in the community at large. He gives a lot of credit to Kara Lynne Farr, Judy Lee, and others "who have worked so hard to develop these student talents." The excellence that has been traditionally established has resulted in the choral music program receiving recognition from the state and nation. The Sound Investment group continues to attract the attention of those who know quality work.

Mr. Thompson claims a "strong sense of mission" in his life and works hard to "life people through music." Besides teaching music at school, he teaches 40 private piano students, directs the Wasatch Community Chorus and the Wasatch Children's Chorus, and is President of the Wasatch Arts Council. That organization sponsors a state-wide piano competition. He indicates that he is currently working to establish an annual choral festival. These activities would bring to Heber performances from around the world who are recognized for their excellence in music to work with our youth.

As a youth himself, Mr. Thompson was reared in California and graduated from Riverbank H.S. Recognition was his when he was selected to receive three scholarships and many awards--including being named as the youngest member of the California Dance Team which won the world championship and was invited to perform in Europe on the BBC-TV against a British team. "We won again," he said. They were invited to perform in Hungary. It was only after a mistake and some turmoil at the border that they arrived in Budapest.

BYU became his choice after dropping dancing, and there he received the highest marks on the senior comprehensive music exam. It was in the middle of his college work that he served an LDS Mission in Canada.

Mr. Thompson met his wife, Elizabeth, at the Y, and they have three sons--Andrew, Richard and Robert. The family lives in Heber. Brad had formed his own business, but when the district advertised for a music teacher, he applied. This is his third year of teaching, which he enjoys very much.

Here he serves in the LDS Church as Scoutmaster, Stake Music Chairman, and Primary pianist.

There are many other things that the school and community will see Mr. Thompson involved in. This is just the start of a far-reaching career, his friends claim.

Midway Man Appointed to

Provo, Utah, February 26, 1985 -- Third District Congressman Howard Nielson has appointed Andrew Mitchell, Midway, to his Education Advisory Committee. The appointment is Mitchell's second to the committee, and his current term will run through December 1986.

As a member of the committee, Mitchell will advise Nielson on pending legislation regarding education. He and other committee members will study various bills, summarize their pros and cons, and will then come to quarterly meetings prepared to advise Nielson regarding the legislation.

"I found during my first term that advisory committees were of tremendous help to me as I sought to make decisions on complicated bills," Nielson explains. "Very few issues in Congress are strictly black and white. Most are extremely complex, and most have far-reaching implications."

Nielson adds that he has asked people like Mitchell, who are recognized in their fields, to lend their experience and their
